A democratic paradigm shift based on:
Delegated, Active & Effective Vote Allocation
to achieve 100% representation for all citizens from election to election

If you are a knowledgeable Java person who can offer a solution to replace the following work-around please share it with us

Hello

If you opened this you I assume that you are having trouble opening one of our Google forms and that you are probably using Firefox.

Firefox is my default browser and I much prefer it to any other I have used but it sometimes doesn't play nice with Google Drive and Java for me. In my case I get the following message:

Google Drive without non-free Javascript

You don't really want to store your data in a cloudy service do you?

Please select the format to download in:

- Plain text (".txt")
- ODT (".odt")

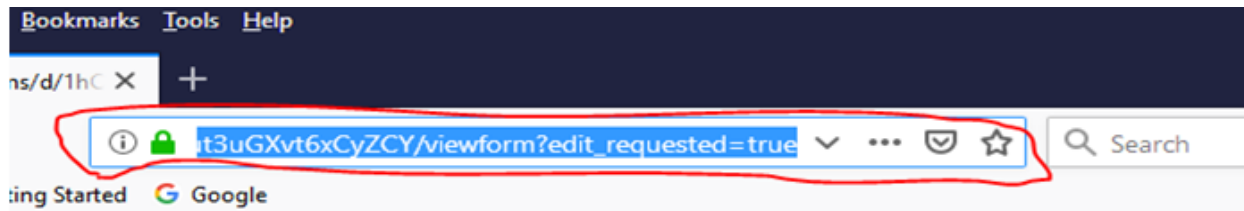

Or try to get the document in a different format, (".png", ".avi", ".pdf", etc.):

Expected 3 letter file ext

Go fetch the document

I don't understand what that's about and, since I don't have any experience with Java, I have never bothered to figure it out though I suspect my Firefox browser or my computer is missing some Java script that Google requires. Whether you get the same error message or something else the work around I use successfully should work for you as well.

I simply go to the address bar of the browser displaying message above...

...copy the web address from there and paste it into the address bar of another browser and then click on enter.

Google Chrome would be your best bet since it is extremely unlikely to hiccup over opening a Google Form. This work-around works for me in Chrome and also in Internet Explorer, Safari, Edge and Opera so it is probably only Firefox that has Java script issues with Google Drive and its Forms, Sheets, Docs, etc.

Thanks for your interest in the TotalRep Campaign. I hope you continue to find it worthy of your support.
